Key Facts/Sticky Knowledge	We can remember people in lots of different ways like love, memories, birthdays, anniversaries and photos. Humanists do not believe in a god. They believe that science explains how the world was created. Humanists believe we have one life and we should make the most of this life doing positive things like helping others as we go. Christians remember religious people through pictures like 'The Last Supper' and 'The Nativity'.

Our Curriculum Journey	Journey: At the beginning of our RE day we will discuss ways in which we can remember people. Children will think of someone that they remember (this can be a living person or someone who had died) and give a reason as to why they remember them. The children will then be introduced to Humanism and their beliefs. Children will then think of ingredients for a 'happiness cake' - representing humanists being positive and living life to the full. Towards the end of the day, we will cover Christianity and how Christians remember people through art. We will then compare this to Humanism, looking at how focus on celebrating new life and the children will provide positive advice for a new born baby.
